Strategic thinking has a bigger role when a person or family crosses the border to live the rest of their life in New Zealand. Derrick Jones Management adopting a risk thinking approach involves focusing on both upside and downside risk which in turn encourages clients to be more open about identifying risk. We have implemented processes that evaluate proposals for risk and uncertainty which can be identified early on in the application process of a client. Managing risk and avoiding losses is our priority when we consult with a client.

Auckland, the largest, populous, economical capital of New Zealand is already one of the world's most diverse cities with 40 percent of its residents born overseas. The city features two large Asian populations, Indian and Chinese as well as a medium-sized Korean and Filipino community and migrant population from the UK, South Africa and Pacifica.

We are specialized in a complete application process that includes your residency and settlement for life in New Zealand.
